

Yuliia's Routine

PERSONALISED HOMECARE RECOMMENDATIONS

10 April 2026

I'm delighted to share a tailored routine designed to restore hydration to your combination skin, where some areas thirst for moisture while others prefer restraint.

What To Expect

- In the first week, you may notice the balm feels rich on oily areas, so apply it sparingly to dehydrated zones only.
- By week two to three, you should see improved skin comfort and a visible reduction in dry patches as hydration restores.

Skincare Tips

WHAT TO EXPECT IN THE FIRST FEW WEEKS

- Your skin may feel more reactive before it fully settles. This is completely normal when your routine is adjusting and does not mean the products are not working.
- Stick with what has been recommended and resist introducing anything new for at least four weeks. Less is genuinely more during this period.
- If you experience persistent irritation or anything that concerns you before your next appointment, get in touch. You are never bothering us.
- Give your skin the same patience you would give anything worth having. Real change takes time but it is coming.

INTRODUCING ACTIVE INGREDIENTS

- Always introduce one new active ingredient at a time, never two at once, so you know exactly what is working or what is reacting.
- Start slowly. Use two to three times a week before building to daily, and always patch test first on a small area for three days.
- Active ingredients like retinol, vitamin C, acids and exfoliators are powerful but they need to earn their place in your routine gradually.
- Never use retinol and a strong acid on the same evening. They could destabilise each other and irritate the skin barrier. If you are ever unsure about combining ingredients, get in touch and we will guide you.

DIET AND YOUR SKIN

- Dairy and high glycaemic foods are the most common dietary triggers for acne and inflammation. You do not need to eliminate them entirely but noticing patterns is worthwhile.
- Omega-3 fatty acids found in oily fish, walnuts and flaxseed actively support skin barrier function and reduce inflammation.
- Alcohol dehydrates the skin and disrupts sleep quality. Both show on your face faster than most people expect.
- No single food will fix your skin but a consistently anti-inflammatory diet supports everything else you are doing.
